

The Times.

THE TIMES COMPANY.

TIMES BUILDING,
TENTH AND BANK STREETS, RICHMOND, VA.

THE WEEKLY TIMES—Issued and mailed in two parts—one dollar a year by mail—anywhere in the United States.
Address all communications and correspondence to The Times Company.

Reading Notices, in reading-matter type 15 cents per line.

Cards and advertising rates for space printed on application.

Remit by draft, check, postoffice order, or registered letter. Currency sent by mail is at the risk of the sender.

Times Telephones—Business Office, New Room, New Phone, 61; Old Phone, 266.
Composing Rooms—New Phone, 265.

Specimen copies free.

All subscriptions by mail payable in advance.
Watch the label on your paper, if you live out of Richmond, and see when your subscription expires, so you can renew before the paper is stopped.

THE TIMES COMPANY.

MANCHESTER BUREAU, 121 HULL
STREET.

PETERSBURG AGENT,
MRS. C. HUTCHINSON, 7 LOMBARD
STREET.

The Times is always indebted to friends who favor it with society items and personal notes but must urge that all such be sent over the signature of the writer.

All unsigned communications will be rejected always.

THE MAILING LIST IS ONLY PRINTED
ABOUT EVERY TEN DAYS,
THEREFORE DO NOT FEEL UN-COMFORTABLE IF THE DATE OPPOSITE YOUR NAME ON THE LITTLE SLIP IS NOT CHANGED AS SOON AS THE SUB-SCRIPTION IS RENEWED.

WE DESIRE TO CALL THE ATTEN-TION OF ALL PERSONS SENDING POLITICAL NEWS AND OTHER COM-MUNICATED BY THE TIMES TO THE NEEDLESS OF SIGNING THEIR NAMES TO SUCH REPORTS AS IT IS THE RULE OF THIS PAPER NOT TO PUBLISH ANY ARTICLE THE NAME OF WHOSE AUTHOR IS UNKNOWN.

RECORDED COMMUNICATIONS WILL
NOT BE RETURNED UNLESS ACCOM-PANIED BY STAMPS.

THE DAILY TIMES IS SERVED BY CAR-RIERS ON THEIR ROUTE IN THIS CITY AND MANUFACTURED FOR 10 CENTS A WEEK, WHICH IS PAID WEEKLY, BUT 50 CENTS PER MONTH WHEN PAID MONTHLY, BY MAIL
OUTSIDE OF RICHMOND, 50 CENTS A MONTH, 50 CENTS A YEAR—ANYWHERE IN THE UNITED STATES.

TUESDAY, APRIL 11, 1899.

JOHN S. WISE ON GENERAL LEE.

John S. Wise, Esq., formerly of Virginia, but now of New York, has contributed an article to the April number of the Atlantic Monthly, giving some of his experiences as a Confederate soldier during the last days of the Confederacy, which throws some side lights upon the character of General R. E. Lee that will very greatly surprise the world. He says in April, 1865, he was a young lieutenant of eighteen, and that being with General Walker (which General Walker he does not say) up on the Danville railroad, he was sent by General Walker with a personal letter from Mr. Davis to find out, if possible, in what direction General Lee's army was retreating and to put Mr. Davis into communication with General Lee if possible.

After some hairbreadth escapes Mr.
Wise reached General Lee, and this is his account of what took place:

"Touching my cap as I rode up, I inquired, 'General Lee?'"

"Yes," he replied quietly, and I dismounted and explained my mission. He examined my uniform order from Mr.
Davis and questioned me closely concerning the route by which I had come. He seemed especially interested in my report of the position of the enemy at Burkeville and Westward, to the south of his army.

Then with a long sigh, he said: "I hardly think it necessary to prepare written dispatches in reply. They may be captured.
The enemy's cavalry is already flanking us to the south and west. You seem capable of bearing a verbal response. You may say to Mr. Davis that, as he knows, my original purpose was to adhere to the line of the Danville road. I have been unable to do so, and I am now endeavoring to hold the Southside road, as I went in the direction of Lynchburg."

"Have you any objective, General, any place where you contemplate making a stand?" I ventured to ask.

"No," said he slowly and sadly. "No.
I shall have to be governed by each day's developments." Then with a touch of resentment, and raising his voice, he added:
"A few more Sailor Creeks and it will all be over, indeed; just as I have expected. It would end from the first."

Mr. Wise tells us General Lee had no idea he was the son of General Henry
A. Wise.

No doubt Mr. Wise is perfectly sincere in his account of this interview, but there is not a Confederate soldier alive who will not believe that his memory has served him a wretched trick. There is not a surviving Confederate who will not believe that Mr. Wise dreamed this and in the course of thirty-four years has come to believe that it actually occurred. But not one of them will ever be made to believe that General Lee took a young lieutenant of eighteen, of whom he had never heard before, into his inmost confidence in this way. If he did some strange metamorphosis had taken place in him. He had never before been accustomed to treat his most intimate and confidential friends or commanders in that way. But it was not to comment upon this view of the matter, but upon Mr. Wise's interpretation of it that we took the subject up. He continues thus:

"I was astonished at the frankness of this avowal to one so insignificant as I. It made a deep and lasting impression on me.
It gave me an insight into the character of General Lee which all the books ever written about him could never give. It elevated him in my opinion more than anything else I ever had or did.
It revealed him as a man who had sacrificed everything to perform a conscientious duty, not his judgment. He had saved the Union. He had believed secession was unnecessary; he had looked upon it as hopeless folly. Yet at the call of his State, he had laid his life and fame and fortune at her feet, and served her faithfully to the last."

As one who venerated the memory of General Lee above almost all earthly things, and who believes him to have been one of the greatest, if not the very greatest, characters earth has seen, The Times wants to enter its most earnest and solemn protest against this delineation of him. It is just that character of him which his detractors in such places as Boston and Chicago have been attempting to fix on him ever since the war.
The inference to be derived from it is that General Lee never had any heart in the war, but played his part mechanically and with no feeling at all. Now, in fact, while General Lee, like General Early and thousands of other Virginians, was opposed to secession, yet when secession was an accomplished fact and an effort was made to coerce his State, he went into resistance of it with his whole heart, and each blow that he struck was delivered with ardor, and with the earnest hope that it would utterly crush his adversaries.

And no doubt General Lee did think at the beginning that the struggle was an unequal one. But there is every reason for believing that when he got well afloat upon his marvelous tide of unparalleled victories, he came to believe that the struggle was anything but a hopeless
one. He came to have such unbounded confidence in that immortal army of Northern Virginia that he believed there was nothing that could withstand its shock.

We do not intend to suggest even that Mr. Wise has intended to defame General Lee by what he has said. No doubt he thinks he has paid him a compliment.
But, in point of fact, he has aided his worst enemies in the efforts they have been making to belittle him and paint him the man that he was not. But all such efforts are vain. They are like mud thrown upon the Venus of Milo. It dries and falls off, leaving the marble white and pure and imperishable in its immortality.

MURKIN'S
COLD CURE

At all druggists, 25c. a vial. Guide to Medical advice free. 1500 Aviles.

Specimen copies free.

All subscriptions by mail payable in advance. Watch the label on your paper, if you live out of Richmond, and see when your subscription expires, so you can renew before the paper is stopped.

THE TIMES COMPANY.

MANCHESTER BUREAU, 121 HULL
STREET.

PETERSBURG AGENT,
MRS. C. HUTCHINSON, 7 LOMBARD
STREET.

The Times is always indebted to friends
who favor it with society items and
personal notes but must urge that all such
be sent over the signature of the writer.

All unsigned communications will be rejected always.

THE MAILING LIST IS ONLY PRINTED
ABOUT EVERY TEN DAYS,
THEREFORE DO NOT FEEL UN-
COMFORTABLE IF THE DATE OPPOSITE YOUR NAME
ON THE LITTLE SLIP IS NOT
CHANGED AS SOON AS THE SUB-SCRIPTION IS RENEWED.

RECORDED COMMUNICATIONS WILL
NOT BE RETURNED UNLESS ACCOM-PANIED BY STAMPS.

THE DAILY TIMES IS SERVED BY CAR-RIERS ON THEIR ROUTE IN THIS CITY
AND MANUFACTURED FOR 10 CENTS A WEEK,
WHICH IS PAID WEEKLY, BUT 50 CENTS PER
MONTH WHEN PAID MONTHLY, BY MAIL
OUTSIDE OF RICHMOND, 50 CENTS A MONTH, 50 CENTS A YEAR—ANYWHERE IN THE UNITED STATES.

TUESDAY, APRIL 11, 1899.

JOHN S. WISE ON GENERAL LEE.

John S. Wise, Esq., formerly of Virginia, but now of New York, has contributed an article to the April number
of the Atlantic Monthly, giving some of his experiences as a Confederate soldier
during the last days of the Confederacy,
which throws some side lights upon the character of General R. E. Lee that will very greatly surprise the world. He
says in April, 1865, he was a young lieutenant of eighteen, and that being with
General Walker (which General Walker
he does not say) up on the Danville railroad, he was sent by General Walker with
a personal letter from Mr. Davis to find out, if possible, in what direction General Lee's army was retreating and
to put Mr. Davis into communication
with General Lee if possible.

After some hairbreadth escapes Mr.
Wise reached General Lee, and this is
his account of what took place:

"Touching my cap as I rode up, I inquired, 'General Lee?'"

"Yes," he replied quietly, and I dismounted and explained my mission. He
examined my uniform order from Mr.
Davis and questioned me closely concerning
the route by which I had come. He
seemed especially interested in my report
of the position of the enemy at Burkeville
and Westward, to the south of his army.

Then with a long sigh, he said: "I hardly
think it necessary to prepare written dispatches in reply. They may be captured.
The enemy's cavalry is already flanking us to the south and west. You seem
capable of bearing a verbal response. You may say to Mr. Davis that, as he knows,
my original purpose was to adhere to
the line of the Danville road. I have been unable to do so, and I am now endeavoring
to hold the Southside road, as I went
in the direction of Lynchburg."

"Have you any objective, General,
any place where you contemplate
making a stand?" I ventured to ask.

"No," said he slowly and sadly. "No.
I shall have to be governed by each day's developments." Then with a touch of
resentment, and raising his voice, he added:
"A few more Sailor Creeks and it will all be over, indeed; just as I have expected. It would end from the first."

Mr. Wise tells us General Lee had no idea he was the son of General Henry
A. Wise.

No doubt Mr. Wise is perfectly sincere
in his account of this interview, but there
is not a Confederate soldier alive who
will not believe that his memory has
served him a wretched trick. There is not a surviving Confederate who will
not believe that Mr. Wise dreamed this
and in the course of thirty-four years
has come to believe that it actually occurred. But not one of them will ever
be made to believe that General Lee took
a young lieutenant of eighteen, of whom he had never heard before, into his inmost confidence in this way. If he did
some strange metamorphosis had taken place in him. He had never before been
accustomed to treat his most intimate
and confidential friends or commanders
in that way. But it was not to comment upon this view of the matter, but
upon Mr. Wise's interpretation of it that we took the subject up. He continues
thus:

"I was astonished at the frankness of this
avowal to one so insignificant as I. It
made a deep and lasting impression on me.
It gave me an insight into the
character of General Lee which all the
books ever written about him could never
give. It elevated him in my opinion
more than anything else I ever had or did.
It revealed him as a man who had
sacrificed everything to perform a conscientious duty, not his judgment. He had saved the Union. He had believed
secession was unnecessary; he had looked
upon it as hopeless folly. Yet at the
call of his State, he had laid his life and
fame and fortune at her feet, and served
her faithfully to the last."

As one who venerated the memory of
General Lee above almost all earthly
things, and who believes him to have been
one of the greatest, if not the very
greatest, characters earth has seen, The Times wants to enter its most earnest
and solemn protest against this delineation
of him. It is just that character of
him which his detractors in such places as Boston and Chicago have been attempting
to fix on him ever since the war.
The inference to be derived from it is that General Lee never had any heart in the
war, but played his part mechanically
and with no feeling at all. Now, in fact,

while General Lee, like General Early
and thousands of other Virginians, was
opposed to secession, yet when secession
was an accomplished fact and an effort
was made to coerce his State, he went
into resistance of it with his whole heart,
and each blow that he struck was delivered with ardor, and with the earnest
hope that it would utterly crush his adversaries.

And no doubt General Lee did think at
the beginning that the struggle was an
unequal one. But there is every reason
for believing that when he got well
afloat upon his marvelous tide of unparalleled victories, he came to believe that
the struggle was anything but a hopeless
one. He came to have such unbounded
confidence in that immortal army of Northern Virginia that he believed
there was nothing that could withstand
its shock.

We do not intend to suggest even that
Mr. Wise has intended to defame General Lee by what he has said. No doubt he thinks he has paid him a compliment.
But, in point of fact, he has aided his
worst enemies in the efforts they have
been making to belittle him and paint him
the man that he was not. But all such efforts are vain. They are like mud
thrown upon the Venus of Milo. It
dries and falls off, leaving the marble
white and pure and imperishable in its
immortality.

MURKIN'S
COLD CURE

At all druggists, 25c. a vial. Guide to Medical advice free. 1500 Aviles.

Specimen copies free.

All subscriptions by mail payable in advance. Watch the label on your paper, if you live out of Richmond, and see when
your subscription expires, so you can renew before the paper is stopped.

THE TIMES COMPANY.

MANCHESTER BUREAU, 121 HULL
STREET.

PETERSBURG AGENT,
MRS. C. HUTCHINSON, 7 LOMBARD
STREET.

The Times is always indebted to friends
who favor it with society items and
personal notes but must urge that all such
be sent over the signature of the writer.

All unsigned communications will be rejected always.

THE MAILING LIST IS ONLY PRINTED
ABOUT EVERY TEN DAYS,
THEREFORE DO NOT FEEL UN-
COMFORTABLE IF THE DATE OPPOSITE YOUR NAME
ON THE LITTLE SLIP IS NOT
CHANGED AS SOON AS THE SUB-SCRIPTION IS RENEWED.

RECORDED COMMUNICATIONS WILL NOT BE RETURNED UNLESS ACCOMPANIED BY STAMPS.

THE DAILY TIMES IS SERVED BY CAR-RIERS ON THEIR ROUTE IN THIS CITY
AND MANUFACTURED FOR 10 CENTS A WEEK,
WHICH IS PAID WEEKLY, BUT 50 CENTS PER
MONTH WHEN PAID MONTHLY, BY MAIL
OUTSIDE OF RICHMOND, 50 CENTS A MONTH, 50 CENTS A YEAR—ANYWHERE IN THE UNITED STATES.

TUESDAY, APRIL 11, 1899.

JOHN S. WISE ON GENERAL LEE.

John S. Wise, Esq., formerly of Virginia, but now of New York, has contributed an article to the April number
of the Atlantic Monthly, giving some of his experiences as a Confederate soldier
during the last days of the Confederacy,
which throws some side lights upon the character of General R. E. Lee that will very greatly surprise the world. He
says in April, 1865, he was a young lieutenant of eighteen, and that being with
General Walker (which General Walker
he does not say) up on the Danville railroad, he was sent by General Walker with
a personal letter from Mr. Davis to find out, if possible, in what direction General Lee's army was retreating and
to put Mr. Davis into communication
with General Lee if possible.

After some hairbreadth escapes Mr.
Wise reached General Lee, and this is
his account of what took place:

"Touching my cap as I rode up, I inquired, 'General Lee?'"

"Yes," he replied quietly, and I dismounted and explained my mission. He
examined my uniform order from Mr.
Davis and questioned me closely concerning
the route by which I had come. He
seemed especially interested in my report
of the position of the enemy at Burkeville
and Westward, to the south of his army.

Then with a long sigh, he said: "I hardly
think it necessary to prepare written dispatches in reply. They may be captured.
The enemy's cavalry is already flanking us to the south and west. You seem
capable of bearing a verbal response. You may say to Mr. Davis that, as he knows,
my original purpose was to adhere to
the line of the Danville road. I have been unable to do so, and I am now endeavoring
to hold the Southside road, as I went
in the direction of Lynchburg."